

FAQ

I cannot juggle working from home and managing my children's home learning – what should I do?

First of all – stop worrying or comparing yourself to some ideal model of the perfect lockdown parent. That person does not exist.

We say every week when we send out our suggestions and ideas that it is not compulsory, because it isn't. Your child will be learning anyway – but they may just not want to learn that way or without being in school.

They will learn through play, craft, art, sport, kitchen maths, song, rhyme, reading, talking and listening, researching and so on. Your child may well be doing a lot of learning anyway.

If you are still worried talk to a member of our staff when we phone for a chat with your child – we will see if we can help directly.
